

China Studies and ASEAN publications

Compiled by Lea Diño

1. Mindanao and the East ASEAN Growth Area
UP CIDS
1995

This is a documentation of a series of workshops and discussions on how best Western Mindanao and the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao can be integrated into the then-being proposed East ASEAN Growth Area (EAGA) trading zone. The proceedings were held on two separate occasions: on January 20-21, 1995 in Zamboanga City; and on April 25-26, 1995 in Cotabato City.

2. ASEAN Perspectives on Human Rights and Democracy in International Relations
Hernandez, Carolina
UP CIDS & UP Press
1995

The paper investigates the various notions on the nature and characteristics of human rights of ASEAN nations in contrast to those of the West. It also evaluates future prospects of human rights in ASEAN member-states and calls for the good ideas on the implementation of human rights for the benefit of ASEAN peoples.

3. Isles of Contention
Benito O. Lim, Armando Malay Jr., Edgardo E. Dagdag
UP CIDS, in cooperation with the Asian Center
1996

The publication features three of the five papers presented at the RTD on “The Philippines’ Claim to Spratlys” in 1995. The papers elaborate on the profile of Spratlys and the claims of different nations to the islands.

4. Management Control in Chinese-Filipino Business Enterprises
Emerlinda Roman, Erlinda Echanis, Ernesto Pineda, Rafael Rodriguez, and Ma. Teresa Sicat
UP CIDS & UP Press
1996

The book looks into the different control systems implemented by Chinese-Filipino entrepreneurs in their businesses. It investigates the principles and rationale behind such systems and explores, through the case studies of some Chinese-Filipino enterprises, how these businessmen’s enterprises are affected by their history and culture.

5. Hong Kong in Deep Crisis: Economic Woes and Political Anxieties Threaten Freewheeling Capitalism
Eduardo C. Tadem
UP CIDS
1998

Hong Kong in Deep Crisis recounts the economic crisis that befell on Hong Kong and its consequent impact on finance, employment, elections, and environment of the region in 1998. The paper analyzes the events spurred by the crisis, the consequent political events in Hong Kong, and the rehabilitation undertakings of the government.

6. Post-1998 Cambodia: From Jungle War Politics to Politics of Accommodation
Noel Mañago Morada
UP CIDS
1999

In Post-1998 Cambodia: From Jungle War Politics to Politics of Accommodation, Noel Morada narrates the recent political history of Cambodia and weaves his analysis of the political culture of the nation and its entry to ASEAN. Morada explores the nature of the nation's conflict and its key players, the readiness of Cambodia to enter ASEAN and the possible dynamics in the ASEAN community once the kingdom is admitted into it.

7. China's Agricultural Modernization: Lessons and their Implications for the Philippines
Aileen S.P. Baviera, Eduardo Tadem, Romeo Royandoyan
UP CIDS
2001

The book discusses the different factors that led to the success of China's agricultural industry, in comparison to the realities of Philippine agriculture like landlessness, poverty, and limited public spending on agricultural projects and programs. However, the book points out that the Philippines is not the only one that should learn from China—the latter should also study the former's "experience in civil society, participation in rural policy formulation and program implementation."

8. State of the Art in Resources on Contemporary Asia (Manuscript)
Aileen S.P. Baviera
UP CIDS
2006

The paper examines state of studies on East Asian nations ("inclusive of the ten Southeast Asian countries, China, Japan and Korea"), particularly those being offered as courses and degree programs by top universities in the country. It looks at the strengths, weaknesses, and opportunities for improvement of different Asian Studies programs.

9. The Philippine National Territory and the Continental Shelf (Transcript)
2008

This transcript of a forum on the Spratlys group of islands contains insights on the various factors to be considered in the Asian nations' claims to the said islands. The speakers elaborate on the historical and legal aspects of the situation. They also discuss the consequences of the actions of the nations that assert their territorial claim over the Spratlys, in addition to the agreements regarding these claims.

From PPJ

1. "Kidnapping, Citizenship and the Chinese"

Public Policy Journal Vol. 1 No. 1

Caroline Hau

UP CIDS

1997

In this essay, Hau argues that the kidnapping cases in the 80s and 90s, which mainly involved ethnic Chinese residing in the Philippines, reveal issues in identity and citizenship and the how the state carries out its role in protecting and serving its people. Hau points out the disparity in the views on the country's different citizens, the commodification of the kidnapping victims, and elaborates on the outcomes of these abductions.

2. "Eastern Asia in the Next Decade"

Public Policy Journal Vol. 1 No. 2

David Wurfel

UP CIDS

1998

This essay assesses regional roles and domestic trends (e.g., economic power, political influence and stability, democratic processes, and globalization effects) of USA, Japan, China, Southeast Asian nations and regional organizations like ASEAN and its offshoot communities AFTA (ASEAN Free Trade Area) and ARF (ASEAN Regional Forum) in the context of the 1998 economic crisis. The author also shares the vision of the "Asian century" where Asia not only "achieves dominant economic and/or political power, but that it also produces ideas that influence world affairs generally."

3. "The Party's Over for Southeast Asia"

Public Policy Journal Vol. 2 No. 1

Michael Vatikiotis

UP CIDS

1998

In this essay, Vatikiotis argues that the 1998 economic crisis contributes to the political landscape, but notes that such a phenomenon is complex. He also explores how the crisis affects different levels of the society: the corporate sector and both white- and blue-collar workers.

4. "Nationalism, Ethnicity and the Asia Pacific"

Public Policy Journal Vol. 2 No. 3

Wang Gungwu

UP CIDS

1998

The essay centers on the tension between ethnicity and nationalism and how it contributes to the modernization of countries, their various types and forms, and the Asian countries that best exemplify such. In the end, the author calls for the recognition of the history of minorities in order for Asian countries to attain modernization goals.

5. "The Asian Economic Crisis and Democracy"

Public Policy Journal Vol. 2 No. 3

Harold Crouch

UP CIDS

1998

The essay examines how the political systems of Asian nations contribute to their economic landscape, especially in 1998 when an economic crisis hit the region. Harold Crouch distinguishes the regimes in Asian countries and determines which of these lean toward economic growth.

6. "The 'Asian Values' Debate: A Partisan Assessment"

Public Policy Journal Vol. 2 No.3

Carl Lande

UP CIDS

1998

In "The 'Asian Values' Debate," Lande discusses the pros and cons of liberal and illiberal democracies, as seen in five Southeast Asian nations through Robert Dahl's concept of polyarchy (with Guillermo O'Donnell's republicanism). He also assesses the political landscape of these countries in the context of the 1998 economic crisis and the limitations that nations without illiberal democracy may encounter should they adopt that concept.

7. "Water for the 21st Century: Vision to Action for Southeast Asia"

Public Policy Journal Vol. 4 No. 2

Angel Alejandrino, Leonardo Liongson, Mai Flor, and Yolanda Gomez

UP CIDS

2000

In this essay, the authors call for a long-term course of action in the management and utilization of water resources. They aim that from this, Southeast Asian nations will benefit from the development of adequate and affordable water services. The authors determine the factors that contribute to the challenges in managing water resources and services and provide a suggested framework for action.