About the Organizers

Philippine Network of Food Security Programmes (PNFSP) is a national network with 25 member organizations committed to greater food security and agroecology as an alternative agricultural system and a social movement.

The Alliance for Genuine Development SOCCSKSARGEN is a broad alliance opposed to developmental aggression and environmental destruction in South Cotabato, Sultan Kudarat, Sarangani, Davao del Sur, and General Santos City. The alliance was formed in the mid-1990s at the height of the struggle against the proposed large-scale mining, the unbridled and aggressive expansion of agri-plantations, and other environmentally destructive projects in the region by local and multinational companies. AGD is a member organization of PNFSP.

Climate Change Network for Community-based Initiatives is a national network of 16 member organizations for climate justice, environmental rights, and sustainable development.

The UP Center for Integrative and Development Studies (UP CIDS) is the policy research unit of the University of the Philippines System. The Program on Alternative Development is one of the programs at UP CIDS that aims to look at paradigms that are largely marginalized and excluded from the mainstream and surface grassroots perspectives from the margins.

This activity was organized through the support from the Action Solidarité Tiers Monde and Solidagro.

Action Solidarité Tiers Monde is a Luxembourg-based development non-governmental organization (NGO) that has been working for almost 50 years to improve the living conditions of the most disadvantaged. It is committed to the political, economic, social, and cultural emancipation of peoples from so-called "Third World" countries.

Solidagro is a Belgian NGO that promotes the right to food and drinking water for all through agroecology. Solidagro works with local partners and members of civil society in areas of high food insecurity in Bolivia, Burkina Faso, Mali, Senegal, and the Philippines to strengthen their technical, operational, and institutional capacities.
